

Hint for Problem 141

To see how many broken permutations of a  $k$  element set into  $n$  parts do not have  $k$  as a part by itself, ask yourself how many broken permutations of  $[7]$  result from adding 7 to the one of the two permutations in the broken permutation  $\{14, 2356\}$ .